Anti-social behaviour

Anti-Social behaviour is defined by the Anti-Social Behaviour, Crime and Policing Act 2014 as acting in a manner that caused, or was likely to cause, harassment, alarm, distress to any persons.

Examples of Anti-Social Behaviour:

- 🚫 Noise Nuisance
- 🚫 Criminal damage, vandalism, graffiti
- 🚫 Intimidation and harassment
- 🚫 Litter, dog fouling and fly tipping
- 🚫 Drug or alcohol misuse
- 🚫 Nuisance Motorcycles
- 🚫 Hate behaviour that targets people because of their perceived differences

This is by no means an exhaustive list. The important factors in determining "what is" and "what is not" anti-social behaviour are the level of seriousness and frequency of the behaviour. There is a balance between tolerating behaviour that we personally may not agree with and ensuring that we tackle behaviour that is anti-social.
