NSPCC - Talking to your child about online safety.

<https://www.nspcc.org.uk/keeping-children-safe/online-safety/talking-child-online-safety/>

Children and young people today often see their online and offline lives as one and the same. As technology evolves quickly, it can be hard to keep up – but regular, open conversations make a big difference. There will be times when children need advice or support, especially when navigating the online world. They might come across harmful content or be contacted by someone they don't know, which can be confusing or upsetting. As a parent or carer, it's important to step in when you feel they need a nudge in the right direction.

Whether it's about what they're sharing, who they're speaking to, or how they're feeling online, consistent conversations help build trust and confidence.

Top tips for talking to children about staying safe online.

1. Start with the positives - Being online can be a great way for children to learn, be creative, and stay connected with friends and family. Recognising these benefits helps keep conversations balanced and encourages confident, safe use of technology.
2. Find the right time and place - Choose a calm moment to talk, such as during a walk, car journey, or shared activity. Avoid starting the conversation when emotions are high or during a disagreement.
3. Use child-facing resources and advice - Support your conversation with age-appropriate tools, videos, or guides. These can help children understand key messages and make the discussion more engaging and relevant to their stage of development.
4. Ask about their experiences - Use open questions like: 'Have you seen anything online that made you uncomfortable?' - 'Who do you chat with online?' - 'Are they people you know offline?' - 'How do you feel when using certain apps or games?'
5. Make it part of everyday life - These chats don't need to be formal or one-off. Regular, relaxed conversations help children feel supported and more likely to speak up if something worries them.
