High value gold

Remember:

- Most offences take place when an address is empty.
- But offences have taken place when residents are home.
- Offenders forensically aware and may use bleach or other fluids to clean the crime scene.

Protecting your jewellery:

- Keep an inventory of your jewellery. Take photos, write a description of each item noting any identifying marks. Include the value and purchase date and receipt if known.
- List high value items on your home insurance policy to ensure they are covered under the policy.
- Keep high value items in a safe and secure the safe to the floor or wall.
- Lock and secure windows and doors every time you leave the house. This is easy to forget. If you have it, make sure you turn on CCTV and burglar alarms.
- Be mindful of displaying items on social media. Remember you can turn privacy settings on.
- Criminals may pursue targets via social media, by asking for your personal information over the phone or cold callers knocking at your door. Be vigilant to this.
