East Timor man jailed for sexually abusing child in Winsford

Tomas Sarmento

A man from East Timor who groomed and sexually abused a child in Winsford has been jailed.

Tomas Sarmento appeared at Liverpool Crown Court today, Friday 13 March, where he was sentenced to 17 years in prison.

The 43-year-old of the Winsford area, was previously found guilty of rape of a girl under 13 and causing a girl under 13 to engage in sexual activity, following an eight-day trial at Liverpool Crown Court which concluded on Wednesday 21 January.

During the trial, the court heard how Sarmento groomed and sexually abused the victim between 2022 and 2023, starting when the girl was just 8 years old.

Sarmento would lure the victim to his home under the pretence that she could use his Wi-Fi. Once the victim was inside the address, he would sexually abuse her.

The victim later bravely confided in a friend about what Sarmento had done to her, and the abuse was subsequently reported to police.

Following the reports an investigation was launched by detectives and Sarmento was questioned in relation to the allegations, where he denied any wrongdoing.

Despite his denial, he was charged with the offences.

Following the sentencing, Detective Constable Ann Muldowney, who led the investigation, said:

“Sarmento is a dangerous predator, who is yet to show any remorse for the sexual abuse he forced a vulnerable child to endure.

“He deliberately abused his position as a trusted adult to isolate and manipulate the victim in order to subject her to obscene acts of sexual violence, and I welcome today’s sentence, which ensures he can no longer pose a risk to other innocent children.”

In addition to his sentence, Sarmento was also handed a 10-year Sexual Harm Prevention Order (SHPO) and ordered to sign the Sex Offenders’ register for 10 years.

DC Muldowney added: “I commend the victim in this case, for the courage she has shown throughout the entirety of this investigation, despite having to relive her trauma during a trial, is truly remarkable.

“It is thanks to her exceptional strength and bravery that we were able to gather the evidence needed to bring this case before the courts and ensure Sarmiento will never again have the opportunity to harm another child.

“I’d also like to thank the prosecution team for their efforts in securing justice for the victim and her family, and I hope today’s outcome provides them with some sense of closure as they continue to rebuild and move forward with their lives.”

Police warn teenagers to be wary of social media scam

Police are warning young people to be on their guard over a social media scam.

Teenagers and students are being targeted on social media with so called ‘lucrative’ opportunities to get rich quick, which are actually very likely to make them lose money quick.

Cheshire Constabulary’s Economic Crime Unit are aware of reports from teenagers who have been conned out of hundreds of pounds or tricked into ‘money muling’ - laundering criminal funds through their own bank accounts – on the promise of easy money.

The scammers place ‘job adverts’ on social media, generally on TikTok, to make initial contact with victims before they are invited into a WhatsApp chat.

They provide their bank details and are paid a small amount, normally £5, for liking an online video before the conversation moves to messaging service Telegram.

They are then given ‘jobs’ as either traders or cashiers.

Traders are asked to complete several tasks earning £2-3 each time and their earnings appear to be accumulated in an investment or cryptocurrency account.

In order to receive the funds they must pay a release fee of between £80 and £300 to account details provided by the fraudsters. Some victims have made two or three payments before they realise they have been tricked and will never see any money.

Cashiers are encouraged to provide their bank account details and falsely believe they are working for TikTok. They receive funds, which appear to be the ‘release fees’ paid by other victims, before passing these onto the fraudsters’ accounts, while also paying £5 ‘reward’ payments to unsuspecting victims joining the scam. Allowing their accounts to be used in this way constitutes money muling, which is a criminal offence.

PC Jim Day from Cheshire Constabulary's Economic Crime Unit, said:

“Despite what some ‘influencers’ profess online, there are, unfortunately for us all, no get rich quick schemes. If it sounds too good to be true, then it’s usually a scam. Online fraudsters have continued to become increasingly sophisticated in the ways that they target victims, particularly teenagers, to gain their trust and trick them into parting with their money or allowing their bank accounts to be used to launder criminal funds.

“If you’re bombarded by stories of influencers and others making money online, it’s understandable that you might begin to believe them. These scams lure you in on the promise of easy money but prey on you and leave you significantly out of pocket or at risk of further consequences.

“We urge teenagers and their parents or carers to be alive to the risks of such scams and to steer well clear and avoid being taken in.”

Successful first deployment of Live Facial Recognition in Chester city centre

Cheshire Constabulary has completed its first deployment of Live Facial Recognition (LFR) technology in Chester city centre.

The deployment took place on Thursday 5 March and marked the first time the LFR van has been used in Cheshire. Officers, alongside colleagues from Greater Manchester Police, spent the day speaking with residents, visitors and business owners, explaining how the technology works, outlining the strict safeguards in place, and answering questions from the public.

The day focused on public engagement, demonstrating how the technology supports local policing when it comes to safeguarding vulnerable people and identifying suspects or wanted individuals.

Throughout the deployment, the system processed over 34,000 faces, and in line with national guidance, biometric data belonging to members of the public, who were not part of a pre-approved watchlist, was automatically and immediately deleted.

Live Facial Recognition (LFR) deployment in Chester city centre

Chief Inspector Darren Griffiths, who oversaw the operation, said: “This first deployment was all about engaging with our communities and being open about the technology we use.

“It was really encouraging how many people took the time to speak with us, ask questions and see the LFR van in action.

“The technology alerted officers only when necessary and demonstrated how LFR can be used in a targeted and proportionate way. This learning will help shape how we use the technology going forward, particularly during major policing operations and events where it can provide an additional layer of safety for the public.”

More information about Live Facial Recognition, including how it works and the safeguards in place for every deployment, can be found on the Cheshire Police website.

Police continue to appeal for witnesses following criminal damage of Chester city walls

Following an appeal for witnesses earlier this week, officers from Cheshire Constabulary's Rural Crime Team have since uncovered further information in relation to the incident.

On Monday 9 March, officers from Cheshire Constabulary's Rural Crime Team were notified of reports that the historic city centre walls had been sprayed with graffiti.

It was reported that four girls had been seen spraying white paint on a section of the walls near the Cathedral and Northgate at around 4.33pm.

Following enquiries, officers have identified four girls, believed to be aged between 13 and 16 years old, who are thought to be connected to the incident.

They are all described as white, all with dark brown or black hair, and were wearing blue, black, and grey tracksuits.

They were first seen at 4.07pm outside the Poundland store before heading up Eastgate Street towards the Cathedral. They then continued up Northgate Street and accessed the city walls.

They are believed to have committed the damage before leaving the walls at around 4.57pm.

Police Constable Jono Lightfoot said:

“This may seem like a trivial incident, but Chester’s city walls are strictly protected under the law and, due to the type of paint used on the stones, the operation to properly treat and clean these sections of the walls is going to take a considerable amount of time and will cost a significant amount of money.

“After extensive CCTV enquiries and a number of people already coming forward with information, we have now established the movements and descriptions of four teenagers believed to be involved in the incident.

“We are also keen to hear from anyone who may have seen them on the day, or who has CCTV or dashcam footage, and would ask them to review their videos to see if the girls have been captured.

“I would also like to take this opportunity to appeal directly to the four girls and ask them to do the right thing: come forward and work with us to put right what has happened.”

Following the incident, Police Sergeant Anthony Gallagher, of the Roads and Crime Unit, said:

"It is never a good idea to try and outrun police officers who have already signalled for you to pull over, as dangerous manoeuvres and high speeds—such as those we saw here today—only increase the likelihood of a serious collision occurring.

"It is also never wise to think you can outwit our colleagues in the sky or on four legs—especially when those legs belong to PD Logan. I would like to thank all involved for their swift and professional response, which resulted in three arrests being made.

“When our teams combine their efforts with a common goal in mind, it will never end well for those who think they can flout the law without facing consequences.”

Salford man jailed following drunken taxi driver robbery

A man from Salford has been jailed after robbing a taxi driver of his vehicle at knifepoint in Sandbach.

Daniel Eckersley, also known as “Daniel Brein” and “Daniel Bryan”, appeared at Chester Crown Court on Friday 6 March, where he was sentenced to six years and eight months’ imprisonment.

The 39-year-old had previously pleaded guilty to robbery, possession of a knife in a public place, drink driving, and driving without insurance.

The court heard that at around 9.51pm on 6 December 2025, an unknown man knocked on the door of an address in the Dragon’s Lane area of Moston and asked the occupant to order him a taxi.

Daniel Eckersley

The man was under the influence of alcohol at the time and left the address when the taxi arrived. Moments later, the woman heard screaming from outside. Looking out of the window, she saw the man punching the taxi driver.

During the violent confrontation, the man managed to take control of the vehicle and drove away from the scene in the direction of Middlewich.

The woman contacted Cheshire Police to report the incident. Shortly afterwards, the taxi driver also called officers, saying he had been the victim of a robbery and had been stabbed in the leg by the passenger.

Officers were deployed to the scene and located the vehicle less than three miles from where it had been stolen. A knife was found inside the passenger footwell.

The taxi driver confirmed that the man who attacked him had been wearing a grey tracksuit and a baseball cap. Officers began searching the area for a suspect matching that description.

Forty minutes after the initial incident, officers from the Constabulary’s Firearms Unit were stopped by a member of the public who said a man matching the description had been seen around 15 minutes earlier at a pub in Middlewich.

Enquiries established that a man fitting the suspect’s description entered the premises at 10.17pm, left shortly afterward, and then headed to another nearby pub.

Less than an hour after the initial robbery, at 10.45pm, an officer from the Constabulary’s Roads and Crime Unit spotted the man and approached him. The intoxicated man identified himself as Daniel Bryan.

A breath test revealed that Eckersley was over three times the legal limit, and he was arrested on suspicion of drink driving. It was subsequently confirmed that he was also wanted for a robbery in Greater Manchester, and he was further arrested for this offence.

Following his arrest, detectives retrieved two SD cards from the stolen taxi’s dashcams. The footage showed Eckersley threatening the driver and stabbing him in the leg.

Eckersley, of Little Hutton, Worsley in Salford, was later charged. He provided no-comment answers to all questions during interview.

Detective Constable Vickie Wallace said:

“No one should go to work expecting to go through such a terrifying situation as the one Daniel Eckersley subjected his victim to in December of last year.

“We may never know Eckersley’s motivation for threatening an unsuspecting taxi driver and stealing his vehicle, but it was undoubtedly fuelled by the considerable amount of alcohol he had consumed.

“This case highlights the importance of having dashcams in your vehicle, especially if you are involved in taxi services or any occupation that requires engaging with the public for long periods.

“The footage from the dashcams — capturing Eckersley’s initial threats, the stabbing, and the theft of the vehicle — was vital evidence that helped us secure this sentence.”

Ryan Sleigh appeared at Chester Crown Court on Tuesday 3 March, where he was jailed for 32 months' imprisonment.

Sleigh, of Bibby Avenue, Warrington, had pleaded guilty to possession with intent to supply Class A drugs.

The court heard that on 2 February 2026, Cheshire Police launched Operation Crossbow — a collaborative policing effort aimed at disrupting criminal activity across Cheshire and its borders. The operation included officers from roads policing, armed response, motorcycles, dogs, drones, the Special Constabulary and local policing teams, all working together with the shared goal of locating wanted criminals.

At around 11am, officers deployed in Warrington spotted a grey Volkswagen Golf in the Park Avenue area of Latchford. An unknown woman was seen leaning into the passenger-side window of the vehicle.

The officers observed what appeared to be a hand-to-hand exchange, believed to be a suspected drug deal between supplier and customer.

Following the exchange, the officers alerted other patrols to challenge the suspicious behaviour exhibited by the Golf's occupant, identified as Ryan Sleigh.

Around 15 minutes later, officers on foot patrol stopped Sleigh as he attempted to enter a shop on the Riverside Retail Park. He was detained while they conducted a search of his vehicle.

Inside the car, officers found 25 snap bags containing white powder — later identified as cocaine — concealed within the centre console and door pockets. A further £150 in cash was also seized.

The 34-year-old was arrested on suspicion of possession with intent to supply Class A drugs.

A subsequent search of the 34-year-olds home resulted in the recovery of three mobile phones, further snap bags, a set of scales, and a notepad containing the names of potential drug buyers and suppliers.

Sleigh provided no comment answers during interview and was later charged with the offences. He pleaded guilty at the first opportunity.

Detective Constable Andrew Dolan, of the Serious and Organised Crime Unit, said:

“Ryan Sleigh really did choose the worst possible day to be out and about in Warrington making his deliveries, and there is no doubt that, following our intervention — and now with his prison sentence — several of his customers will be going without the products they ordered.

“Given the amount of Class A drugs we found in his car, paired with the drug paraphernalia and list of prospective customers discovered at his address, it was clear to us that Sleigh was running a high-level operation.

“With that said, he will now spend two and a half years behind bars, and I hope he uses that time to seriously reflect on his life choices.”

Macclesfield drug dealer jailed after being stopped by officers on patrol

A Macclesfield man has been jailed after admitting dealing class A drugs.

Paul Gostelow from Duke Street, Macclesfield appeared at Chester Crown Court on Thursday 5 March to be sentenced after admitting to possession with intent to supply cocaine at an earlier hearing.

The 58-year-old was sentenced to five years, seven months and two weeks in prison.

On Monday 19 January 2026 PCs Nathan Manley and Izzy Morrell were on patrol when they stopped a silver Tiguan on Macclesfield Road, Prestbury.

They signalled for the car stop and when it did, the front seat passenger, Gostelow, fled from the vehicle and ran through a car park.

The driver, a woman, remained in her seat.

One of the officers chased after Gostelow as he ran across the bowling green and detained him.

Gostelow had been seen dropping something as he fled and a search was made by the other officer resulting in blocks of white powder being recovered from the scene. Gostelow was also searched and found to be in possession of white powder.

He was subsequently arrested and the car was searched. A phone was seized, and following this, a search of his address recovered drugs, phones and other items.

PC Orry Barnard said:

“This is another brilliant example of our officers out on patrol proactively stopping and searching those suspected of criminality.

“We are out there 24/7 acting on information and would urge anyone with information on drug dealing in your community to contact us on 101 or via website so that we can continue to put people like Gostelow behind bars and disrupt illegal drug activity.”

Men sentenced in connection with Cheshire West drug supply

Two men have been sentenced in connection with the supply of cannabis.

Lee Lewis

Lee Lewis, 31, and Kraig Alyward, 41, appeared at Chester Crown Court on Monday 2 March for sentencing.

Lewis, of Shot Tower Close, Chester, was sentenced to 40 months' imprisonment after pleading guilty to being concerned in the supply of Class B drugs, being concerned in the supply of crack cocaine, being concerned in the supply of cocaine, possession with intent to supply Class B drugs, possession of criminal property, and possession of an offensive weapon.

Alyward, of Shephard Close, Ellesmere Port, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment, suspended for 18 months, after pleading guilty to being concerned in the supply of Class B drugs, possession with intent to supply Class B drugs, and possession of criminal property.

During the hearing, the court was told that the pair were stopped by Cheshire Police officers during a routine traffic stop in the Canadian Avenue area of Chester on Tuesday 7 October 2025. A small child was also in the car at the time.

Officers noticed a strong smell of cannabis and subsequently searched the vehicle. The pair were arrested after officers found a carrier bag containing cannabis in the boot.

Following the arrests, officers carried out searches at both men's addresses, discovering further bags of cannabis, drug paraphernalia, and nearly £4,000 in cash at Alyward's home. A samurai sword was recovered from Lewis' property.

Content recovered from devices seized from both men showed they were actively involved in the supply of cannabis, with messages discussing deliveries, cash amounts, and deal sizes.

The pair were released on bail while further enquiries continued. However, investigators later discovered that they were still facilitating the sale of cannabis, crack cocaine and cocaine, using new mobile numbers.

Based on this further evidence, two warrants under Section 8 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act were executed on Friday 12 December 2025, resulting in both Lewis and Alyward being arrested for a second time.

During the warrants, officers recovered the new phones, along with a large amount of cash and cocaine at Lewis' address, and further quantities of cannabis and drug paraphernalia at Alyward's home.

In police interviews, both men denied involvement in the supply of drugs, claiming that any substances found were for personal use only.

Following sentencing, Constable Jack Ryder said:

"Despite catching Lee Lewis and Kraig Alyward bang to rights with a boot full of cannabis in October 2025, it clearly wasn't enough of a wake-up call for them, as they chose to run the risk of continuing to facilitate the sale of cannabis while under investigation.

"However, their gamble did not pay off and resulted in our officers visiting their homes with a number of questions — including how they were sending messages to each other discussing the sizes and prices of cannabis orders when we had their phones.

"Cheshire Police take the sale of illegal drugs extremely seriously, and now that their sentences have been handed down, I hope Lewis and Alyward take a long look at their lives and seriously consider finding more legitimate careers."
