Cyber crime advice

Several million cases of fraud and of computer misuse are reported to the police every year. It's staggering, but even more staggering is so many of those crimes could have been prevented by making a few small changes in our online behaviour.

To avoid becoming a victim of online crime you don't need to be a computer expert. Developing a few good habits drastically reduces your chances, makes you less vulnerable, and lets you use the web safely.

Visit the National Cyber Security Centre website: www.ncsc.gov.uk/cyberaware for step-by-step instructions on keeping your devices up-to-date with the latest security updates and for more online security advice.

Online fraud, also known as cyber crime, covers all crimes that:

- take place online
- are committed using computers, or
- are assisted by online technology

To reduce your chances of becoming a victim:

- use a strong password or passphrase, which is at least 12 characters long and contains a mixture of letters, numbers and symbols
- never give personal or sensitive details out online or over email
- make sure all devices have up-to-date anti-virus software and a firewall installed
- keep software and apps regularly updated and regularly back up your data
- only download from legal, trusted websites
- only open emails and attachments from known and trusted sources
- look for the padlock icon in the address bar when paying for goods or services online – it means the website is trusted and secure
- check the address starts with https:// whenever you're asked to enter sensitive information online
- avoid using public WiFi hotspots that are not secure or ask you for personal information to access it

- control your social media accounts – regularly check your privacy settings and how your data is being used and shared
- be cautious of internet chats and online dating – there's no guarantee you're speaking to who you think
- be extremely cautious if you're asked for money
- turn on two-factor authentication on all accounts where possible
