Recent News

Congratulations to Jordan who recently won Shropshire's Outstanding Young Citizen Award!

Jordan is 16 years old and studying at Telford College, but you may have met him at Lawley events where he has volunteered as our mascot Mawley Mole for the last 18 months.

Very well done and congratulations Jordan! For more details read the news story on our website:

Recovering hacked accounts

A step-by-step guide to recovering online accounts.

Whether it's your email, a social media account, or your online bank, losing access to a digital account can be stressful. This page summarises what you can do to minimise any damage, and how you can regain access to your accounts.

How to tell if you've been hacked

Check your online accounts to see if there's been any unauthorised activity. Things to look out for include:

- being unable to log into your accounts
- changes to your security settings
- messages or notifications sent from your account that you don't recognise
- logins or attempted logins from strange locations or at unusual times
- unauthorised money transfers or purchases from your online accounts

In some cases, it may not be possible to recover your account with the online service. In such cases, you'll have to create a new account. Once you've done this, it's important to give your contacts your new details, and tell them you've abandoned the old account. Make sure to update any bank, utility or shopping websites with your new details.

© Crown Copyright 2022

- #### 1. Contact your account provider

Go to the account provider's website and search their help/support pages which will explain the account recovery process in detail. It's likely to be different for each account.
- #### 2. Check your email account

Check there are no unwanted forwarding rules in your email account. Cyber criminals may set up rules which means they'll automatically receive copies of all emails sent to your account (which would allow them to reset your passwords).
- #### 3. Change your passwords

Change the password for any account that has been hacked, and also for any accounts that use the same password. Cyber criminals know that people use the same password for different accounts, and so will try the same 'hacked' password across multiple accounts.
- #### 4. Force all devices and apps to log out

This can usually be done from the 'Settings' menu of the app or website (or it may be part of the 'Privacy' or 'Account' options). Once you've done this, anyone attempting to use your account will be prompted to supply the new password.
- #### 5. Set up 2-step verification (2SV)

2SV (which is also known as two-factor authentication or 2FA) usually works by sending you a PIN or code, often via SMS or email, which you'll then have to enter to prove that it's really you. So even if a criminal knows your password, they won't be able to access your accounts.
- #### 6. Update your devices

Apply updates to your apps and your device's software as soon as they are available. Updates include protection from viruses. Applying these updates promptly is one of the most important (and quickest) things you can do to prevent your account from being hacked.
- #### 7. Notify your contacts

Contact your account contacts, friends or followers. Let them know that you were hacked, and suggest they treat any recent messages sent from your account with suspicion. This will help them to avoid being hacked themselves.
- #### 8. Check your bank statements and online shopping accounts

Keep a look-out for unauthorised purchases. Check your bank accounts for any unusual transactions. You can contact your bank directly for further support. Always use official websites or social media channels, or type the address directly into your browser. Don't use the links in any messages you have been sent.
- #### 9. Contact Action Fraud

If you've lost money, tell your bank and report it as a crime to Action Fraud, the UK's reporting centre for cyber crime (in Scotland, contact the police by dialling 101). You'll be helping the NCSC and law enforcement to reduce criminal activity.

West Midlands Guided Tours

Come and join us on our Guided walking tour of the UNESCO World heritage site that is Ironbridge. Let our knowledgeable guide help you to explore "The Birthplace of the Industrial Revolution".

There will be lots of time for photos and questions and plenty of time to reflect on this stunning and historically significant town.

We are a dog friendly tour, but please only arrive with your dogs if they are on a lead, very friendly and well behaved, you must pick up after your dogs, (this is a beautiful town, and we want it to stay that way).

Tours run every Saturday between March to December and will begin promptly at 11am.

This Tour involves steps and is moderate – steep in places and is approximately 3.5 miles, it is not suitable for wheelchairs or buggies, please allow around 3hrs for your Guided tour.

All tours must be booked in advance and may be cancelled due to extreme weather.

Please wear suitable clothing and footwear.

Come and explore with us, meet new friends, learn and most of all enjoy.

Telford and Wrekin

Your health and social care champion

Healthwatch Telford and Wrekin is your local health and social care champion. From Newport and Telford to Standford Bridge and Coalport and everywhere in between, we make sure NHS leaders, Social Care leaders and other decision makers involved in providing services to support your wellbeing hear your voice and use your feedback to improve care and services.

High Ercall, Tibberton, Cold Hatton Heath, Puleston, Edgmond, Kynnersley, Rodington, Bratton, Preston upon the Weald Moors, Muxton, Hadley, Wellington, Oakendales, Cluddley, Aston, Little Wenlock, Coalmoor, Doseley, Coalbrookdale, Ironbridge, Madeley, Lightmoor, Woodside, Dawley, Stirchley or many other places - wherever you are in fact - Healthwatch Telford and Wrekin is here for you.

Healthwatch Telford and Wrekin is your local health and social care champion. If you use GPs and hospitals, dentists, pharmacies, care homes or other support services in your area, we want to hear about your experiences.

We are independent and have the power to make sure NHS leaders, Social Care leaders and other decision makers involved in providing services to support your wellbeing listen to local feedback and improve standards of care. We can also help you to find reliable and trustworthy information and advice.

It's really important that you share your experiences - whether good or bad, happy or sad. If you've had a negative experience, it's easy to think there's no point in complaining, and that 'nothing ever changes'. Or, if you've had a great experience, that you 'wish you could say thank you'. Remember, your feedback is helping to improve people's lives. So, if you need advice, or you're ready to tell your story - we're here to listen.

10 Top Tips on Supporting Children with SELF-REGULATION

Children need to learn to understand and recognise their emotions, while finding healthy ways to process them. Emotional self-regulation, however, depends heavily on age and development. While very young ones or children with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) may find it particularly challenging to self-regulate, nurturing these important skills can be hugely beneficial. Here are ten top tips for supporting children with their self-regulation.

- 1. DESIGNATE A TRUSTED ADULT
It's vital that children feel safe and know they have someone that can always go to for help. It's important that you designate a trusted adult for your child. This could be a parent, a teacher, a friend, or even a pet. Make sure this person is someone you can rely on to help your child with their self-regulation.
- 2. MEET CHILDREN HALFWAY
Understand where your child is at. Don't expect them to be able to regulate their emotions at the same level as you. Meet them where they are and build on what they can do. For example, if your child is struggling to regulate their emotions, you could try using a visual aid like a 'feelings wheel' to help them identify and express their feelings.
- 3. FACTOR IN THEIR BASIC NEEDS
Remember that for a child to be able to regulate their emotions, they need to have their basic needs met. This includes things like sleep, food, and exercise. If a child is hungry or tired, they will find it much harder to regulate their emotions. Make sure you are taking care of these basic needs first.
- 4. REMAIN PATIENT
If a child is struggling with their self-regulation, it can be frustrating for you. But it's important to remain patient. Self-regulation is a skill that takes time to develop. Don't expect your child to be able to regulate their emotions overnight. Celebrate small wins and be patient with the process.
- 5. BE A DISREGULATION DETECTIVE
When someone can tell you why they are struggling to regulate their emotions, it can be helpful to understand the reasons behind it. This could be something like a change in routine, a new environment, or a specific trigger. Try to identify these triggers and work on helping your child manage them.
- 6. USE SUITABLE LITERATURE
There are some wonderful books that can help your child learn to regulate their emotions. Books like 'The Colour Monster' and 'The Colour of My Emotions' are great for this. Read these books with your child and talk about the feelings they are experiencing.
- 7. TRY SENSORY RESOURCES
An overlap between sensory needs and emotional regulation is possible. Children may struggle to self-regulate if they are experiencing sensory overload. Try using sensory resources like weighted blankets, fidget toys, or noise-canceling headphones to help your child feel more comfortable.
- 8. NURTURE INDEPENDENCE
If you feel it's appropriate, let children try to regulate their emotions on their own. This could be as simple as giving them a few minutes to sit alone and think about their feelings. If they need help, be there to support them, but encourage them to try on their own first.
- 9. MODEL GENUINE FEELINGS
Children learn by example. If you show them how to regulate your own emotions, they will learn to do the same. Talk about your own feelings and how you manage them. For example, you could say 'I'm feeling a bit frustrated, so I'm going to take a deep breath and try again.'
- 10. FORMULATE A PLAN
As much as we try to prevent children from experiencing dysregulation, it's always going to happen. So it's important to have a plan in place for when it does. This could be something like 'If I feel angry, I will go to my room and take deep breaths until I feel better.'

COMMUNITY FUND

Early Years

Dandelion group

The dandelions in Telford are a parent/ carer group who are helping support the local community and services with positive changes. We know sometimes being a parent can have its challenges but we don't want you to feel alone! This page is used to promote what is available in Telford and Wrekin. We also help with the family hubs drop in sessions every Wednesday so if you do want to speak to one of us feel free to pop along 🥰 we are not professionals! we are just parents with a passion as we know how it feels to not know where to turn for directions and we are always happy to help and support! Please like our page for more of what's on 🥰
